

Caution for the Use of Disinfectants on Nichia Products

In response to the recent widespread contagion, there may be a case where the disinfection is obligated at your factories under the guidelines by the authorities. If a disinfectant, especially a chlorine-based disinfectant, comes in direct contact with Nichia’s products, it may cause adverse effects on the product such as corrosion of the electrodes.

Please refrain from spraying disinfectants onto/near Nichia’s products after opening the package or onto/near the goods in process in your factories (i.e. the good with Nichia’s products that are exposed to the air). Please take caution to ensure that no disinfectants come into contact with Nichia’s products.

*Effect of Halogen-Contained Disinfectant (e.g. Chlorine-Based Disinfectant) on LEDs

The electrodes of the LED may corrode, which may lead to functional failures.

Examination Results of an LED Lighted after Saltwater was Applied (The electrode was observed after the encapsulating resin was removed.)

Disclaimer

This document is a controlled document of Nichia Corporation (Nichia) published to provide technical information/data for reference purposes only. By using this document, the user agrees to the following:

- This document has been prepared solely for reference on the subject matters incorporated within it and Nichia makes no guarantee that customers will see the same results for their chosen application.
- The information/data contained herein are only typical examples of performances and/or applications for the product. Nichia does not provide any guarantees or grant any license under or immunity from any intellectual property rights or other rights held by Nichia or third parties.
- Nichia makes no representation or warranty, express or implied, as to the accuracy, completeness or usefulness of any information contained herein. In addition, Nichia shall not be liable for any damages or losses arising out of exploiting, using, or downloading or otherwise this document, or any other acts associated with this document.
- The content of this document may be changed without any prior or subsequent notice.
- Copyrights and all other rights regarding the content of this document are reserved by Nichia or the right holders who have permitted Nichia to use the content. Without prior written consent of Nichia, republication, reproduction, and/or redistribution of the content of this document in any form or by any means, whether in whole or in part, including modifications or derivative works hereof, is strictly prohibited.